Col. Zabriskie's Oration

The eight minutes speech made by Col. Zabriskie on the Fourth of July, 1939, was by far the most brilliant and inspiring of the Fourth of July oratory extant. The CITIZEN takes pleasure in publishing the speech in full.

Freedom of the Press. One hundred and sixty years ago the greatest of the American patriots, John Adams, declared that the right of the people to be informed of the truth was a right which no government could take away from them.

The recollection of that event, replete with the spirit of the American people, is a reminder to us of the duty which we owe to our country and to our fellow citizens.

We pay no homage to tyrants. We place no laurels on the brows of sanguinary conquerors. We contribute no money of praise to the exploits of cunning and treacherous diplomacy. We do not bow down before the altars of power and progress, we rally around a common altar and renew our pledge of fidelity to the great cause of humanity.

This experiment of self government has commanded universal admiration, and has inspired the spirit of emulation which will sweep from the world every vestige of oppression.

The principles of liberty thus established and maintained have stamped upon the human mind the impress of truth. This land of freedom, so vast in extent, so rich in resources, so magnificent in prospect, is the result of pure principles unimpaired by the rights of man.

From thirteen colonies with a population of three millions of free men, it has grown within a century to the present proportions of a mighty empire in power and majesty.

The American principle pervades all nations and people, and by the force of its practical example exercises a powerful influence on the deliberations of all governments.

Within a century this principle has been the cause of the most brilliant and successful revolutions in the history of the world. It has been the cause of the most brilliant and successful revolutions in the history of the world.

BLOODY WAR.

St. John's Day was celebrated at St. John's, A. T. June 26, 1939. The celebration was held on the 26th instant, between the Catholic and the Mormon. The 26th of June, being a day for festivities among Mexican Catholics, everybody was having a good time, and were enjoying themselves witnessing an acrobatic performance by a Mexican company in a large corral of Don Rosendo Colon, the performance was about half an hour, when everybody was startled by the report of firearms. As a matter of course a stampede ensued and everybody, performers and all, made a dash for the gate, and all succeeded in getting out without accident. To make a long story short, several of the Mexican cowboys came into town for the purpose of running the town and enacting another Mountain Meadow Massacre on a small scale. A fight took place in the streets, rifle bullets and pistol balls being fired by the air. A little too soon, the fight broke up. The fight lasted some time but finally broke up for a part of the Mexican Danes or cowboys and three four one wounded—lost in somewhat of a hurry; the other four headed by Nat. Greer, who was the leader of the Danes or cowboys. Mr. Greer, from what could be seen, they kept up the fight. The four in the house were Nat. Greer, (leader) Dixie Greer, Harry Greer and James Greer. The casualties of the fight are as follows: Of the four that ran away, one was killed, one was wounded, one was killed, one was wounded. The four that ran away, one was killed, one was wounded, one was killed, one was wounded.
